

WORLD POSTAL CARDS ARE AS GOOD AS MONEY.

EXTRA.
CLEVELANDNominated for President
on the First Ballot.The Result Reached at Chicago at 3.27 This Morning.Candidate for Vice-President to Be Named This Afternoon.The Democratic Platform Demands
a Tariff for Revenue Only.Enthusiasm Among Business Men and Politicians Over the Nomination.Senator Hill Declines to Be Interviewed on the Causes of His Defeat by the Delegates.Story of the All-Night Session of the Convention and the Balloting.SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD BY DIRECT WIRE FROM THE WOMAN.

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, June 23.—2.07 P. M.—Very few delegates have as yet arrived in the hall. The galleries are filling up rapidly. Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan has just come in with Tammany braves.

2.09 P. M.—It is understood that the Botes people are willing the Governor should take second place on the ticket, but the Indiana delegates will insist on Gray.

2.15 P. M.—Don M. Dickinson will present the name of Allen B. Morse for Vice-President.

2.21 P. M.—New York delegation will support ex-First Assistant Postmaster-General Stevenson, of Illinois.

2.27 P. M.—Gen. Patrick A. Collins has arrived with the Massachusetts delegation.

2.37 P. M.—Congratulations are pouring in on Bourke Cockran to-day for his address seconding the nomination of David B. Hill.

It is regarded as the best of the convention's addresses.

2.42 P. M.—The Gray Club, of Indianapolis, arrives, with a band at the head and a banner inscribed "Cleveland and Gray" eliciting much cheering. Each man carries a white plume.

2.45 P. M.—Chairman Wilson takes his seat.

2.55 P. M.—Three cheers are given for Gray.

2.57 P. M.—Much criticism is heard over the horrible bungling made in the apportionment of seats. The trouble appears to run all the way from Chairman Rice, of the National Committee, to Sergeant-at-Arms Wright.

2.40 P. M.—Secretary Bell announces that old and new National Committeemen will meet at the Palmer House at 5 o'clock sharp this afternoon.

2.47 P. M.—The clerk is reading a list of letters and telegrams. Most of the delegates are in the hall. As Gen. Collins's name is read there is applause.

2.49 P. M.—Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan, of New York, and Henry Watterson, of Virginia, are having a conference on the floor.

2.53 P. M.—The delegates as well as the spectators appear tired and are very slow in coming to order.

2.54 P. M.—The Chairman raps for order.

2.56 P. M.—Illinois delegates have been instructed to vote as a unit for Stevenson.

2.57 P. M.—Prayer is being offered by Rev. Dr. Green, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

2.59 P. M.—Delegate Porter, of Tennessee, moves that nominating speeches be limited to five minutes, and seconding speeches to two minutes. Carried.

3 P. M.—Arkansas waives her right to Indiana. Delegate John E. Lamb, of Indiana, takes the platform to present the name of Gov. Gray.

3.07 P. M.—The usual rain is falling, while Lamb is making an eloquent address for Gray.

3.09 P. M.—As Mr. Lamb mentions Gray the entire Indiana delegation arises and the Convention cheers enthusiastically.

3.10 P. M.—Ex-Congressman N. C. Washington, of Illinois, presents the name of Gen. Stevenson.

3.10 P. M.—Delegate Vance, of Connecticut, seconds the nomination of Gov. Gray, of Indiana.

3.17 P. M.—There appears to be a difference of opinion among the Botes people as to whether he would accept the second place on the ticket. They are deliberating on the subject.

3.20 P. M.—It is raining very hard, the roof is leaking again and umbrellas are raised in the hall.

3.22 P. M.—The Iowa delegation has decided not to present Gov. Holes's name.

3.24 P. M.—A Kansas delegate is seconding the nomination of Gov. Gray.

3.27 P. M.—"We made as good a fight as we knew how," said Mr. Sheehan to THE EVENING WORLD reporter, "and the Convention has given us a hard slap in the face. However, we have only the pleasantest feelings towards Mr. Cleveland personally, and only opposed him on the ground of his unavailability as a candidate, but that will not prevent the organization in New York from turning in and working hard for the ticket."

3.28 P. M.—Delegate Gray, seconding Stevenson, says: "I support Gov. Stevenson because I understand that he is a man who believes that to the victor belongs the spoils." (Laughter and cheers.)

3.32 P. M.—Edwin F. Hughes, of Michigan, nominating Allen B. Morse, of Michigan.

3.40 P. M.—Judge Morse's name is received with cheers.

3.42 P. M.—Gov. Flower rises to speak for New York.

Gov. Flower says New York will present no name.

3.43 P. M.—A delegate from North Carolina seconds Stevenson's nomination.

3.45 P. M.—There are cries of "Campbell," but Ohio reports that she has no candidate.

3.46 P. M.—Tennessee seconds the nomination of Gray.

3.50 P. M.—Gen. Bragg, of Wisconsin, takes the platform.

3.52 P. M.—It is raining so hard that Gen. Bragg cannot be heard. He is waiting for a cessation, and the band is playing.

3.51 P. M.—The Chairman raps for order.

3.58 P. M.—It is still raining and the band starts the "Wang" music again.

3.59 P. M.—The Convention is now singing. Burke Cochran leading the crowd.

4.01 P. M.—The first line of the waltz song in "Wang" is being sung. It is put up like this: "Cleveland, Cleveland, here's to Grover Cleveland."

4.06 P. M.—Gen. Bragg resumes speaking.

MR. CLEVELAND NOMINATED.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 23.—The Democratic National Convention accomplished its principal work when, at 3.27 o'clock this morning, after a continuous session of nine and a half hours, ex-President Grover Cleveland was renominated for the Presidency on the first ballot, receiving 617½ votes, against 115 for Senator Hill, 103 for Gov. Botes and the rest scattering. The number necessary for a choice was 607. Mr. Cleveland's nomination was made unanimous, and the convention adjourned till 2 o'clock this afternoon (3 o'clock New York time).

The platform adopted pledges the Democratic party to the policy of a tariff for revenue only, and declares for unsharpened bimetallic coinage, every dollar to be of equal intrinsic value with every other dollar minted.

Mr. Cleveland's name was presented by Gov. Leon Abbott, of New Jersey, which was seconded by Attorney-General Hensel, of Pennsylvania; William H. Wallace, of Missouri; Gen. P. A. Collins, of Massachusetts; A. W. Greene, of Illinois, and Delegate McKenzie, of Kentucky.

William C. De Witt, of Brooklyn, presented the name of Senator Hill, which was seconded by Senator Daniel, of Virginia, and Congressman Bourke Cockran and John R. Fellows, of New York.

Gov. Botes's name was presented by John F. Duncombe, of Iowa, and seconded by Henry Watterson.

After the ballot and the announcement of the result, motions were made by several delegates that the nomination be made unanimous. Several States changed their votes to the Cleveland column. Finally the motion to make unanimous was put and carried, New York and Iowa delegations being conspicuous in the movement.

Adjournment was then taken till 2 o'clock this afternoon (3 o'clock New York time).

MR. CLEVELAND'S STATEMENT.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

BUFFARD'S BAY, Mass., June 23.—At 4.30 this morning Mr. Cleveland, through Gov.

Russell, sent from Gray Gables the following statement to the press:

there should be anywhere among Democrats any lack of harmonious and active effort to win in the campaign which opens before us. I have, therefore, no concern on that subject.

"It will certainly be my constant endeavor to deserve the support of every Democrat."

Mr. Cleveland was terribly tired when the news of the total of the balloting reached him. Joseph H. Jefferson departed at 4.30 o'clock from Gray Gables.

asserted their ability to prevent the choice of the Convention from falling upon the ex-President.

during which a most desperate struggle had been waged between the opposition forces from the very beginning.

So exciting had been the fight that scarcely any of the immense audience of nearly 20,000 people left the hall after they had secured their places at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for when they saw that the battle was to be fought to the bitter end at that session they became even more interested in the proceedings than the delegates themselves. At intervals they became so demonstrative as to interrupt for half an hour a time, and on several occasions it was impossible for Chairman Wilson to preserve order.

Demands were repeatedly made by delegates that the gallery should be cleared by the police, but now a dozen or two officers could turn out 10,000 people was a question that none of them seemed to consider.

When matters reached a crisis shortly before 3 o'clock excitement was aroused to the highest pitch, and the question of adjourning the convention until to-morrow was seriously considered, though the debaters could scarcely make themselves heard above the deafening din that prevailed.

The latest portrait of GROVER CLEVELAND, and said by Mrs. Cleveland to be the only accurate one she has ever seen. (From photograph by Pash Bros.)

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

"I should certainly be chargeable with dense insensibility if I were not profoundly touched by this new proof of the confidence and trust of the great party to which I belong and whose mandates claim my loyal obedience."

"I am confident that our fellow-countrymen are ready to receive with approval a principle of true democracy, and I cannot rid myself of the belief that to win success it is only necessary to persistently and honestly advocate these principles."

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

Mrs. Cleveland went to bed at 4 o'clock, and when the nominee of the Democratic party sought his chamber it was nearly 5.

STORY OF THE BALLOT.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 23.—Three words were uttered by Edward Murphy, Jr., Chairman of the New York State Democratic convention, at 4 o'clock this morning, immediately after the close of the most extraordinary and most remarkable and memorable session of a Democratic National Convention held within the memory of the present generation at least.

"Gentlemen dumped us," he said.

The words expressed a world of meaning for they told the whole story of the disappointed hopes of the men who had come as delegates to the National Convention from the State of New York with the sole object in view of defeating the nomination of Grover Cleveland for the Presidency.

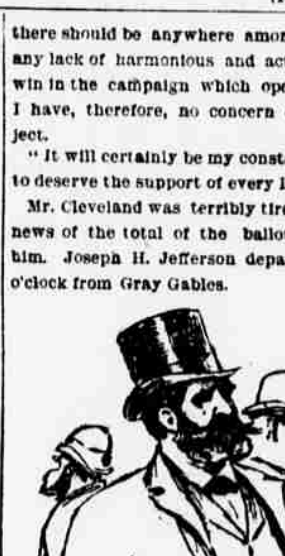

Up to the very last moment the band of seventy-two men, who had stood together like a solid phalanx in their advocacy of the nomination of David B. Hill, conceded nothing to their opponents, but had confidently asserted their ability to prevent the choice of the Convention from falling upon the ex-President.

during which a most desperate struggle had been waged between the opposition forces from the very beginning.

So exciting had been the fight that scarcely any of the immense audience of nearly 20,000 people left the hall after they had secured their places at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for when they saw that the battle was to be fought to the bitter end at that session they became even more interested in the proceedings than the delegates themselves. At intervals they became so demonstrative as to interrupt for half an hour a time, and on several occasions it was impossible for Chairman Wilson to preserve order.

Demands were repeatedly made by delegates that the gallery should be cleared by the police, but now a dozen or two officers could turn out 10,000 people was a question that none of them seemed to consider.

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

"I should certainly be chargeable with dense insensibility if I were not profoundly touched by this new proof of the confidence and trust of the great party to which I belong and whose mandates claim my loyal obedience."

"I am confident that our fellow-countrymen are ready to receive with approval a principle of true democracy, and I cannot rid myself of the belief that to win success it is only necessary to persistently and honestly advocate these principles."

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

Mrs. Cleveland went to bed at 4 o'clock, and when the nominee of the Democratic party sought his chamber it was nearly 5.

STORY OF THE BALLOT.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 23.—Three words were uttered by Edward Murphy, Jr., Chairman of the New York State Democratic convention, at 4 o'clock this morning, immediately after the close of the most extraordinary and most remarkable and memorable session of a Democratic National Convention held within the memory of the present generation at least.

"Gentlemen dumped us," he said.

The words expressed a world of meaning for they told the whole story of the disappointed hopes of the men who had come as delegates to the National Convention from the State of New York with the sole object in view of defeating the nomination of Grover Cleveland for the Presidency.

Up to the very last moment the band of seventy-two men, who had stood together like a solid phalanx in their advocacy of the nomination of David B. Hill, conceded nothing to their opponents, but had confidently asserted their ability to prevent the choice of the Convention from falling upon the ex-President.

during which a most desperate struggle had been waged between the opposition forces from the very beginning.

So exciting had been the fight that scarcely any of the immense audience of nearly 20,000 people left the hall after they had secured their places at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for when they saw that the battle was to be fought to the bitter end at that session they became even more interested in the proceedings than the delegates themselves. At intervals they became so demonstrative as to interrupt for half an hour a time, and on several occasions it was impossible for Chairman Wilson to preserve order.

Demands were repeatedly made by delegates that the gallery should be cleared by the police, but now a dozen or two officers could turn out 10,000 people was a question that none of them seemed to consider.

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

"I should certainly be chargeable with dense insensibility if I were not profoundly touched by this new proof of the confidence and trust of the great party to which I belong and whose mandates claim my loyal obedience."

"I am confident that our fellow-countrymen are ready to receive with approval a principle of true democracy, and I cannot rid myself of the belief that to win success it is only necessary to persistently and honestly advocate these principles."

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

Mrs. Cleveland went to bed at 4 o'clock, and when the nominee of the Democratic party sought his chamber it was nearly 5.

STORY OF THE BALLOT.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 23.—Three words were uttered by Edward Murphy, Jr., Chairman of the New York State Democratic convention, at 4 o'clock this morning, immediately after the close of the most extraordinary and most remarkable and memorable session of a Democratic National Convention held within the memory of the present generation at least.

"Gentlemen dumped us," he said.

The words expressed a world of meaning for they told the whole story of the disappointed hopes of the men who had come as delegates to the National Convention from the State of New York with the sole object in view of defeating the nomination of Grover Cleveland for the Presidency.

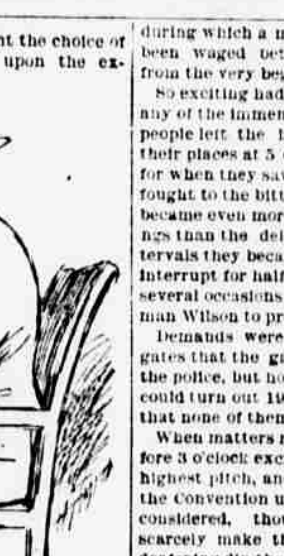

Up to the very last moment the band of seventy-two men, who had stood together like a solid phalanx in their advocacy of the nomination of David B. Hill, conceded nothing to their opponents, but had confidently asserted their ability to prevent the choice of the Convention from falling upon the ex-President.

during which a most desperate struggle had been waged between the opposition forces from the very beginning.

So exciting had been the fight that scarcely any of the immense audience of nearly 20,000 people left the hall after they had secured their places at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for when they saw that the battle was to be fought to the bitter end at that session they became even more interested in the proceedings than the delegates themselves. At intervals they became so demonstrative as to interrupt for half an hour a time, and on several occasions it was impossible for Chairman Wilson to preserve order.

Demands were repeatedly made by delegates that the gallery should be cleared by the police, but now a dozen or two officers could turn out 10,000 people was a question that none of them seemed to consider.

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

"I should certainly be chargeable with dense insensibility if I were not profoundly touched by this new proof of the confidence and trust of the great party to which I belong and whose mandates claim my loyal obedience."

"I am confident that our fellow-countrymen are ready to receive with approval a principle of true democracy, and I cannot rid myself of the belief that to win success it is only necessary to persistently and honestly advocate these principles."

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

Mrs. Cleveland went to bed at 4 o'clock, and when the nominee of the Democratic party sought his chamber it was nearly 5.

STORY OF THE BALLOT.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 23.—Three words were uttered by Edward Murphy, Jr., Chairman of the New York State Democratic convention, at 4 o'clock this morning, immediately after the close of the most extraordinary and most remarkable and memorable session of a Democratic National Convention held within the memory of the present generation at least.

"Gentlemen dumped us," he said.

The words expressed a world of meaning for they told the whole story of the disappointed hopes of the men who had come as delegates to the National Convention from the State of New York with the sole object in view of defeating the nomination of Grover Cleveland for the Presidency.

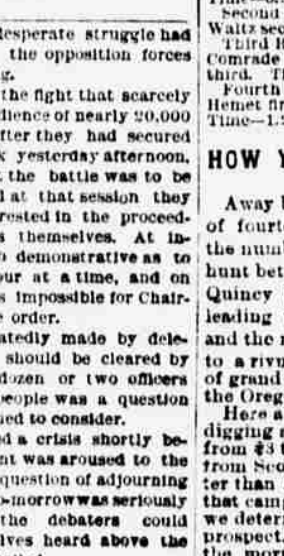

Up to the very last moment the band of seventy-two men, who had stood together like a solid phalanx in their advocacy of the nomination of David B. Hill, conceded nothing to their opponents, but had confidently asserted their ability to prevent the choice of the Convention from falling upon the ex-President.

during which a most desperate struggle had been waged between the opposition forces from the very beginning.

So exciting had been the fight that scarcely any of the immense audience of nearly 20,000 people left the hall after they had secured their places at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for when they saw that the battle was to be fought to the bitter end at that session they became even more interested in the proceedings than the delegates themselves. At intervals they became so demonstrative as to interrupt for half an hour a time, and on several occasions it was impossible for Chairman Wilson to preserve order.

Demands were repeatedly made by delegates that the gallery should be cleared by the police, but now a dozen or two officers could turn out 10,000 people was a question that none of them seemed to consider.

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

"I should certainly be chargeable with dense insensibility if I were not profoundly touched by this new proof of the confidence and trust of the great party to which I belong and whose mandates claim my loyal obedience."

"I am confident that our fellow-countrymen are ready to receive with approval a principle of true democracy, and I cannot rid myself of the belief that to win success it is only necessary to persistently and honestly advocate these principles."

JOHN SCANNEL DOES THE STATUS ACT. (Sketches from life, June 20.)

Mrs. Cleveland went to bed at 4 o'clock, and when the nominee of the Democratic party sought his chamber it was nearly 5.

STORY OF THE BALLOT.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

CHICAGO, June 23.—Three words were uttered by Edward Murphy, Jr., Chairman of the New York State Democratic convention, at 4 o'clock this morning, immediately after the close of the most extraordinary and most remarkable and memorable session of a Democratic National Convention held within the memory of the present generation at least.

"Gentlemen dumped us," he said.

The words expressed a world of meaning for they told the whole story of the disappointed hopes of the men who had come as delegates to the National Convention from the State of New York with the sole object in view of defeating the nomination of Grover Cleveland for the Presidency.

Up to the very last moment the band of seventy-two men, who had stood together like a solid phalanx in their advocacy of the nomination of David B. Hill, conceded nothing to their opponents, but had confidently asserted their ability to prevent the choice of the Convention from falling upon the ex-President.

during which a most desperate struggle had been waged between the opposition forces from the very beginning.

So exciting had been the fight that scarcely any of the immense audience of nearly 20,000 people left the hall after they had secured their places at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for when they saw that the battle was to be fought to the bitter end at that session they became even more interested in the proceedings than the delegates themselves. At intervals they became so demonstrative as to interrupt for half an hour a time, and on several occasions it was impossible for Chairman Wilson to preserve order.

Demands were repeatedly made by delegates that the gallery should be cleared by the police, but now a dozen or two officers could turn out 10,000 people was a question that none of them seemed to consider.

YALE - HARVARD BASEBALL.

The Great 'Varsity Teams Meet
To-Day in Holmes's Field.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
HOLMES'S FIELD, CAMBRIDGE, June 23.—The great Harvard-Yale baseball game, which has been looked forward to with so much interest by graduates and undergraduates of both colleges, called an immense throng to these grounds this afternoon.

The early afternoon betting was 2 to 1 on Harvard, with very little money here.

The rain stopped early and the indications were that the weather would be clear.

Cummock, the old football captain, was heartily cheered as he entered the grounds.

Highlands, for Harvard, and Bowers, for Yale, were down to do the pitching.

Play called at 3.07 P. M. with Harvard in the field. The batting order:

HARVARD. YALE.
Mason, c. Murphy, s. s.
Hall, c. f. Beal, c. f.
Frohlingman, 2b. Bowers, p.
Hovey, s. s. Case, 1 b.
Cook, 3b. Bile, r. f.
Titchener, 1b. Carter, c.
Tracy, l. f. Norton, 2b.
Corbett, r. f. Jackson, 1b.
Highlands, p. Kelly, 3b.
Cuppre, Mr. Muller.

SCORE BY INNINGS.
Yale..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
Harvard..... 1 2 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0

League Baseball To-Day.
New York..... 0 1 3 0
Philadelphia..... 0 1 3 0

Batteries—King and Doyle; Carter and Cross.
Two games scheduled to be played between the Chicago-St. Louis teams at Chicago were postponed on account of wet grounds.

THE HUCKLEBERRY INJUNCTION.

Justice Andrews Hears Argument and Reserves Decision.

Justice Andrews, in Supreme Court Chambers, this afternoon heard argument on the motion of the Harlem Bridge, Morrisania and Fordham Railroad Company, better known as the Huckleberry road, to continue the injunction restraining the town of Westchester, the suburban Traction Railway Company and four other traction companies from interfering with the laying of tracks from Fordham to Mount Vernon.

There was argument on a motion to compel Justice Delahanty, of Williamsbridge, to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court in disregarding the temporary injunction at present in force.

Matthew J. Brown argued on the right of the Huckleberry road to extend its line, but he dwelt particularly on the alleged contempt shown by Justice Delahanty.

H. C. Henderson argued that the injunction did not apply to Justice Delahanty as a judicial officer, and that the law under which the Huckleberry road holds its charter is unconstitutional.

GROCERIES RACES.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

GROCERIES RACE TRACK, June 23.—Results of to-day's events follow:

First Race—Four and one-half furlongs.—Bay Court first, Sade second, Argyle third. Time—0:58½.

Second Race—Four furlongs.—Pleasant first, Walt second, Brighton third. Time—0:51½.

Third Race—Five furlongs.—Pleasant first, comrade first, goldsleeve second, Fearless third. Time—0:57½.

Fourth Race—Five and one-half furlongs.—Henet first, Blackburn second, Oberlin third. Time—1:24½.

HOW YREKA FLAT WAS FOUND.

Away back in the mining days a party of fourteen gold seekers—I was one of the number—left El Dorado County "to hunt better diggins," says a writer in the Quincy Wagon. We took the Indian trail leading up the Sacramento to Oregon, and the noble river soon narrowed down to a rivulet.

We passed along the base of grand old Mount Shasta, following on the Oregon trail.

Here about thirty miners were camped, digging and washing dirt that paid them from $3 to $5 a day. Most of them were from Scotch River, and declared this latter day the best thing they had found in that camp.

This was a poser for us, so we determined to go to Rogue River to prospect. The start was to be made on the morning of the 21st of March, 1851.

The horses and mules of the camp were grazing together, and the exhilaration of a warm sun caused them to start out for a run, and as we were on the road to Rogue River, we were determined to go to Rogue River to prospect.

The start was to be made on the morning of the 21st of March, 1851. The horses and mules of the camp were grazing together, and the exhilaration of a warm sun caused them to start out for a run, and as we were on the road to Rogue River, we were determined to go to Rogue River to prospect.

The start was to be made on the morning of the 21st of March, 1851. The horses and mules of the camp were grazing together, and the exhilaration of a warm sun caused them to start out for a run, and as we were on the road to Rogue River, we were determined to go to Rogue River to prospect.

The start was to be made on the morning of the 21st of March, 1851. The horses and mules of the camp were grazing together, and the exhilaration of a warm sun caused them to start out for a run, and as we were on the road to Rogue River, we were determined to go to Rogue River to prospect.

The start was to be made on the morning of the 21st of March, 1851. The horses and mules of the camp were grazing together, and the exhilaration of a warm sun caused them to start out for a run, and as we were on the road to Rogue River, we were determined to go to Rogue River to prospect.

The start was to be made on the morning of the 21st of March, 1851. The horses and m